How do we use inquiry to study history?

- Pose questions about a topic in history.
- Suggest possible answers and draft a thesis.
- Gather and organize multiple primary and secondary sources.
- Analyze sources for credibility, bias, and perspective.
- Identify gaps in your research.
- Review your thesis.
- Use sources to support or refute your thesis.
- Support your generalizations with evidence.
- Consider historical context.
- Share your findings with others.
- Make revisions based on feedback and further study.
- Pursue other questions.